David Kirby is a partner in the firm and represents businesses and individuals in arbitration, litigation, and appellate matters, including insurance, commercial, energy, pipeline, contract, personal injury, products liability, and premises liability disputes. He handles matters from inception, including investigation and work-up, through trial and appeal. He has also been called in at the eleventh hour for trial, where his ability to simplify complex factual scenarios and bring legal issues into sharp focus have served him, and his clients, well.

Mr. Kirby's practice also focuses on commercial risk management, where he advises clients on insurance coverage, contractual risk shifting, internal policies & procedures, and service contracts. He also assists clients with starting new businesses and guiding shareholders, partners, and executives through the complexities of compliance and termination, where necessary.

Outside of work Mr. Kirby enjoys spending time with his lovely wife, Leslie, and their two children. On occasion, he is able to slip away for a round of golf.
